It is now ready for the resumption of the old offensive and the peace offensive which made settled peace impossible. It is now upon us to make a new peace. The old peace was made by the old peace offensive. The new peace must be made by the new peace offensive. This is the only way to make a new peace.

tempted. This is my judgment, it is to be the great privilege of the democracy of the United States, to show that it can lead the way in the solution of the great social and industrial problems of our time and lead the way in a happy social order or life as a political liberty. The program for this achievement we must attempt to formulate, and in carrying it out we shall do more than can be done in any other way to secure out of existence the tyrannical and arbitrary forms of power which are now manifesting under the name of popular government.

Wherever we look back to Andrew Jackson, we should draw fresh inspiration from his character and example. His mind reached with such a splendid definiteness and firmness the principles of national authority and national action. He was an indomitable in his purpose to give to the principles of the government that there is a certain definite time to recall his career and to renew our vows of faithfulness to the principles and the pure practices of democracy. I repeat a job in this renewal of faith and purpose. I hope that the whole evening may be of the happiest results as regards the fortunes of our party and the nation.

MR. BRYAN SAYS THE PARTY MUST NOT STAN FOR FURTHER DELAY

I do not believe that this is what the people of this country wish or will be satisfied with. Personally, I do not expect the action of the United States as the decision of the nation. I have asserted from the first that the overwhelming majority of the people of this country desire the ratification of the treaty, and my impression to that effect has recently been confirmed by the unmistakable evidence of public opinion given during my visit to numerous of the states. I have endeavored to make it plain that if the senate wishes to say what the undoubted majority of the people of this country desire, they can do so by ratifying the treaty. There can be no reasonable objection to interpretation accompanying the act of ratification itself. But when the treaty is rejected, I must have whether it means that we have ratified or rejected it. We cannot rewrite this treaty. We must take it without changes which would be a violation of the faith of the rest of the world has signed it, we must take the unthinkable back in making another and separate kind of treaty with Germany. But no member of the senate with regard to the wish of the people of the country are credited. If there is any doubt as to what the people of the country think of this vital matter, the clear and steady way out is to submit it for ratification at the next election to the voters of the nation, to give the next election the force of a referendum and to let the people of the country decide for themselves. A referendum is to play in completing the settlement of the war and in the settlement of the future of our country as Germany attempted to perpetuate. We have no more moral right to refuse now to take part in the execution and administration of those settlements than we had to refuse to take part in the fighting of the last few weeks of the war which brought liberty and made it possible to dictate to Germany what the settlement should be. Our fidelity to our associates in the war is in question and the whole future of mankind. It will be heartening to the whole world to know the attitude and purpose of the people of the United States.

"I am not just now of the spiritual leadership of the United States, thinking of international affairs. But there is another spiritual leadership which opens to us and which we can assume. The world has been made safe for democracy, but democracy has not been fully established. All sorts of crimes are being committed in its name, all sorts of preposterous pervasions of its doctrine and practices are being attempted. This is my judgment, it is to be the great privilege of the democracy of the United States, to show that it can lead the way in the solution of the great social and industrial problems of our time and lead the way in a happy social order or life as a political liberty. U.S. PURCHASE BEACH HOTEL IS COMPLETED

Deal Consumed by Government for Property in Corpus Christi.

One of the largest real estate deals ever made here was completed yesterday with the formal transfer to the United States government of the Beach Hotel for use by the United States Public Health Service. It is understood that the consideration was $120,000. D. E. Simmons, United States district attorney for the southern district of Texas, represented the government, and turned over the warrant for payment.

The damage done to the building by the September storm was beyond repair. It is understood that a representative of the supervising architect's office of the United States Treasury department made an inspection shortly after the storm and estimated the damage at $25,000. The reinforced concrete structure with a brick veneer has been declared as strong as ever.

The hotel building was owned by the Corpus Christi Beach Hotel and Land company, of which the principal stockholders are Mrs. H. M. King, Kingsville, Robert J. Kleberg of Kleberg county, and the late John T. Dickinson of Washington, D. C.

The hotel building was completed and placed in operation in the summer of 1917. From then on it was equipped for the use of a hotel until the spring of 1917 when it was leased to the United States Public Health Service and used as a school by them until the summer of 1918.

War Department
Leaves Building
March 3, 1918, the War Department leased the building and it was occupied by the War Department until the summer of 1918 when it was transferred to the United States Public Health Service.

The purchase of the hotel was consummated under the act of congress of March 3, 1918, which appropriated $100,000 for the purchase and erection of hospitals to be operated by the United States Public Health Service, an adjunct to the Treasury Department, for the use of beneficiaries of the War Risk Insurance Bureau and civilian dependents of the armed forces.

The Public Health Service formally took over the hospital July 1, 1918, under command of Major J. M. Rogers. At the time of the storm last September, plans were in readiness to make extensive improvements in the building and equipment.

The hospital served as a place of refuge for many residents on North Beach when the water rose over that section. Throughout Sunday afternoon and night and Monday morning they remained there in safety until rescued by boats when the storm had died down and the water had begun to recede. Not a life was lost at the hospital. It was one of the three buildings left standing on North Beach after the storm.

Hospital May Be Resumed
Major Rogers was at first placed in command of the sanitation of Corpus Christi. As soon as the service was resumed, the patients and staff of the hospital, with the exception of Major Rogers, were removed to the hospital at Alexandria, La.

Major Rogers remained in Corpus Christi after the storm emergency had passed, in order to wind up the affairs of the hospital and to ship the larger part of the equipment to Houston for storage. He was ordered to the government hospital at Great Lakes, Ill., more than a month ago. Only a watchman is now maintained at the building.

The future disposition of the building by the government is not definitely known, but it is known that recommendation has been made by officials in the Public Health Service that a bulkhead be constructed around the building and the first story filled in solid to protect it from any future storm, so that the health service could continue to maintain it in the future and gain the benefit of the climate here.

and that effort should be made at the earliest possible moment.
A democratic party cannot be a party of negotiation; it must have a construction program. It must not only have a program, but it must have a plan for the future. It must have a plan for the future. It must have a plan for the future.

given to all the people suffering from the high tariff burdens that had been placed upon consumers. Democracy cannot remain in operation without all elements and the promotion of the welfare of society in general.

It would prevent action, not by providing back, but by the creation of machinery which will investigate disputes and thus secure a peaceful settlement of difficulties before the controversy reaches the stage of strike or lockout.

The democratic party will distinguish between socialism and revolution, quickening freedom of speech by constitutional methods, and at the same time prevent the use of either freedom of speech or freedom of the press for the overthrow of constitutional government.

The democratic party has for twenty years denounced private monopoly as un-American and intolerable. It cannot surrender its position on this subject now when the interference of all the private monopolies are mobilizing under the banner of the republicans party to attack upon the right of the people to own and operate all necessary monopolies in the interest of the public.

How Competition Helps You

The competition that exists among the hundreds of meat distributors, large and small, means

Rivalry in Prices
Rivalry in Service
Rivalry in Economy
Rivalry in Quality

Swift & Company sells meat at the lowest possible price, consistent with quality and service. Our profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound on all products is evidence of keen competition.

Swift & Company must provide the best service to your dealer or he will buy from our competitors. This means a supply of fine fresh meat always on hand for you at your dealer's.

Swift & Company must keep down manufacturing and selling costs, and use all by-products to avoid waste, or else lose money meeting the prices of competitors who do.

Swift & Company must make its products of the highest quality, or see you turn to others. This means better meat for you and a greater variety of appetizing, wholesome food.

We are as glad for this competition as you should be. It helps to keep us on our mettle.
